Women empowerment is empowering the women to take their own decision for their personal development as well as social development. Women empowerment is made up of two words: power or authority to someone. So, women empowerment means power in the hands of women. It signifies that woman should be given equal opportunity in every field, irrespective of any discrimination.

Empowerment originates from Women's gatherings who try to engage themselves through more noteworthy confidence. They have to decide their own options in life. They likewise try to pick up control and access to assets. Strengthening of women would mean urging women to act naturally dependent, autonomous, have positive confidence, create certainty to confront any tough spot and instigate dynamic investment in different socio-political development endeavours.

In the old-time women were treated very badly by family and society. They were illiterate and were only restricted to doing household tasks. Not only this heinous crime against women against women system, honour killing, domestic violence etc., are still happening.

Women empowerment in India. During the British East India organization rule (1757-1857) and the British Raj (1858-1947), measures focusing on enhancement were authorized, including Bengal Sati Regulation, 1829, Hindu widows' Remarriage,1856, Female child murder Prevention Act, 1870, and the time of assent Act,1891. Women' privilege under the constitution of India essentially incorporates equivalent freedom, poise, and independence from separation; furthermore, India has different resolutions overseeing the privileges of women.

Things have changed a lot. Now India is more committed towards providing opportunity and education to women. Women are safer here and our government is making proper action plans for the development of women.
